Best Practices in Red Panda Management

Why are Red Pandas Important?

- Forests where red pandas live support:
 - 15th of the world's human population with
 - Clean water
 - Clean air
 - Sequester carbon emissions from Flumps and Aeis

Price: FREE

Course Duration: 1hr
(approximate amount of time it will take to finish this course)

In this webinar, attendees will learn about best practice husbandry techniques for red pandas. The San Diego Zoo has had red panda since the 1940's. Nicky Boyd has worked with red panda for 20 years and has put together information on breeding, housing, nutrition, veterinary care, exhibit design, training, and enrichment. The webinar also contains some of the latest information on conservation of red panda in the wild. This webinar will go over the basic best practices from experts in red panda care and shows the San Diego Zoo's red panda management of this

Add to My Courses

Start at your My Home page.

Scroll down, at the left you will see a gray bar titled Member Matching.

Below that, click on Edit responses.

Under EDIT YOUR MEMBER MATCHING QUESTIONS, click on Edit My Answers.

Answer the list of questions by selecting from the choices and click Save.

Other members of the Academy who share your interests will then show up and you can hover your mouse over each one to find out why they were “matched” with you. If you want to add any of them as a contact, click on the envelope picture under their name to send a message requesting to add them as a contact. How to set up your Content Alerts:

Start at your My Home page. (Content alerts bring you news, events, resources and discussions from the association community.)

Scroll down until you see a blue bar in the middle column titled My Content Alerts.

At the bottom right of that section click on manage content alerts.

On the next page, look for Subscribe to a content alert, and under that, Available Alerts.

Click the down arrow at the right to show the list. Highlight (click on) an area of interest and click Subscribe. You can unsubscribe to a content alert at any time. How to use the Course Catalog:

Click My Courses on the top gray bar.

Scroll to the bottom and click the blue bar titled My Catalog.

You can use the Browse by Category at the right to narrow the selections. For example, clicking on the Animal Care Training category will bring you to the listing of courses in the certificate series for Animal Care Training.

Click the Learn More button to get details on any course. A webinar must be viewed in its entirety once you have started it, so note the length of time you will need. A course can be stopped and returned to at your convenience. How to – a note about Resources

In addition to the great content of the courses in the Academy, there is a wealth of information to be found in the Resources.

Click Resources on the top gray bar.

Create your own search or use the Browse by Category list to narrow your search to find useful resources.

Bob's Bio

I have been a zookeeper with the San Diego Zoo for 20 years. I am currently the Animal Care Supervisor of hoof stock and small mammals, and large carnivores, including the zoo's shipping pens and holding facilities. Prior to supervising the Mesa area, I was the supervisor for the Children's Zoo. I was also a Senior Hospital Keeper with Veterinarian Services where I worked for over 9 years. As a hospital keeper, I worked with practically every species (birds, mammals, and reptiles) that is represented at the San Diego Zoo. This working knowledge included, being able to clean, feed, house, capture and restrain, train, and provide enrichment for any animal that stayed at the veterinary hospital. Prior to working at the hospital, I was a mammal keeper for four years, working primarily with primates and carnivores. In my early years, I worked as a
